

It has been brought up that my favorite radio station, K-Love 101.9, may be threatened by the advent of LPFM broadcast format. This is a serious concern to me, as many listener support stations, such as this one, rely on national broadcasting to be able to raise sufficient funds to cover centralized costs. They cannot exist as local, independent stations.

The loss of this station would significantly impact the people in my area. We rely on this station as an alternative to the stations that offer 'shock jock' mentalities. We don't want to have to be constantly on guard when we are with our children, or even alone.

There is so much negative 'stuff' out there today, music, commentary, etc. I love having something to listen to that is positive and always finds the good in a situation.
